Police Searching for the Pretty Seventeen-Year-Old Girl.

INT CABLE TO PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION—SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 10.—Everything is quiet here to-morrow, but at the dock gates and at the railway stations troops stand with fixed bayonets.

The guards are everywhere, reinforcements having been received from London and other cities.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The dock laborers here engaged in loading and unloading Dubus steamers have struck work in sympathy with the Southampton strikers, who have declared a boycott against these vessels.

There are fears that the movement may extend to the London docks.

TELEGRAPH CABLE NEWS SPECIAL

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 10.—The dockmen's riot of last night was made worse by the prevalence of a sense of fear that added to the confusion and served to shield the strikers, who, from their cover, pelted the troops with stones and other missiles.

As a result of this insidious Lieut. Abercrombie was struck on the nose and severely injured and several soldiers so hurt that they had to be carried to the railway station, there being no barracks nearer than Winchester.

The police ordered the doors of all public-houses closed, in the hope that the mob would disperse on being cut off from their base of operations. The expectation, however, proved groundless, as the strikers held their own in the streets, their object being to get at the blacklegs or non-unions, while the troops were supposed to be protecting them.

It was this theory that led to the subsequent attack on the military, which the latter repelled by a charge with fixed bayonets.

Thus propelled, the rioters were driven from street to street. They were also placed upon by fire-engines that had been pressed to the scene of disturbance.

Suddenly the cry, "To the Mayor's," was raised, that functionality being generally believed to be inimical to the strikers.

Immediately, and before the police could be warned of the intended demonstration, a dense crowd had hurried to the Mayor's establishment, on East street, and that and the neighboring thoroughfares were soon packed.

The attack then began, and in an incredibly short time the buildings were completely gutted, all the windows being broken and the contents destroyed and thrown into the street.

At 1 this morning angry crowds were still moving about in front of the railway station.

Soon after midnight the strikers proceeded to the headquarters of the fire brigade, and intimated in unmistakable terms their displeasure at the action of the brigade in using its engines to aid the military.

The Union Company declares that it will remove its works to London rather than accede to the demands of the strikers.

The mob, twice during the night, took possession of the railway line, and prevented trains from passing. The strikers declare that they will starve out the ships now in the docks.

The crew of the Union line Steamer Dane, advertised to sail for the Canaries on Thursday, have not yet signed their articles.

A German Village Ravaged by the Dreadful Hunger-Typhus.

TELEGRAPH CABLE NEWS SPECIAL

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—The terrible hunger-typhus has broken out at Lausitz, a neighboring village, where work is scarce, the employers having withdrawn their patronage.

The unhappy villagers have become so impoverished that their only diet now is potatoes, and the scarcity is increasing.

BAKED CLAY FAMINE FELT.

The Manufacturers Committee Again in Session To-Day.

Tighter and tighter grow the big brick tie and a baked clay fame is now staring dealers in the face.

Mr. Martin, of Peck, Martin & Co., says his firm, like others on the market, is paying more, but that it is that by Monday Tuesday there will be little brick to deliver.

With the suspension of brick deliveries will come the stopping of all building and the throwing out of employment of thousands of men in the famine town.

The first pinch has appeared at the new Criminal Court building on Centre street, where the bricklayers, who have laid off over one hundred bricklayers and masons on account of their supply being stopped.

This is the largest mason-work job now in progress in the city, and unless the tie-up is soon loosened work will soon be stopped entirely.

The Manufacturers' Executive Committee was in session again at the Astor House to-day.

It is said that several of the dealers will make an attempt to get brick from Boston and other Eastern yards.

JUDGE LARREMORE'S SUCCESSOR.

There is no end of speculation as to the successor of Chief Justice Richard L. Larremore of the Court of Common Pleas, whose resignation was announced yesterday. Particularly now is it that has been discovered that, as an interval of three months may elapse between the date of resignation and the election of his successor, Gov. Hill's temporary appointment will hold over until Jan. 1, 1892.

Ex-Judge Henry A. Gilkerson, President of the Board of the Board of Aldermen; ex-Judge Leander Holzer, ex-Judge George M. Van Hoesen, and Civil Court Judge John J. Dwyer are the names most mentioned.

PRETTY HILDA LURED TO RUIN.

A Fraudulent Brother Takes Her From the Florence Mission.

Her Aunt Beseeches the Police to Find the Wayward Girl.

The Brooklyn police are greatly mystified over the strange disappearance of Little G. Carpenter, who left her home, 462 Carlton avenue, on the morning of Aug. 25, and has not since been seen.

Persistent efforts have been made by the parents and friends of the young woman to find her, but, so far, they have not succeeded.

The fact is that Hilda's abduction, though it was accomplished by fraud and force, was not planned and abetted by the girl herself, a willing victim.

There is no inner reason to fear that Hilda has gone irretrievably to the bad, because she has given the police with the assurance that she cannot have any theory for her strange disappearance except that she has been enticed away.

On the morning of Aug. 22 her mother sent her out on an errand. The girl was not dressed to stay out any length of time, and learning the ways of the country, when she fell in with a bad girl, a German, who persuaded her to go with her to see the sights.

As a result, in less than a month, before the aunt yet knew that Hilda had left her place, the two were found parading Bleeker street at night.

While they happened into the Florence Mission, and were observed by the Matron, but the wild life of the streets had been too much for the girl, and the missionaries talked to them in vain.

A few weeks after their visit however, a confidential letter came to the Matron from Florence H. Holzer, who had been a member of the church, and had fallen into the hands of the police, had been sent to the Workhouse and detailed to the Bishop.

At the request of the Matron, Justice White discharged them and they were taken into the Florence Mission.

They had been there a week, when two young men applied for permission to see Hilda. One, a rough-looking customer, the other a well-dressed man, who identified himself as a teacher.

"She is but seventeen years old, and is about five feet tall and weighs I should say 100 pounds," said the teacher.

The matron was suspicious, but gave the two men audience with the girl, and told her that he had come to fetch her home, and that he was a member of the Bowery branch of the Y. M. C. A.

After a long talk with the girl, he obtained his desire, and arranged to meet her in Hudson that afternoon to take her to his school, to live with him there.

Hilda fell in with the brother's game at once, and joined him in the room. The teacher, telegraphing and the nice young man of the Y. M. C. A. were friends together, and went out to lead a life of shame, of which her aunt surmises with tears of sorrow.

She has written once to the Matron of the Florence Mission, telling her of the companion that she was all right, but that he did not believe it. The other girl is now in St. Michael's Home.

Her mother is almost heart-broken. She thinks that the teacher is a bad boy, and that he does not suspect any one of having covered her over there. She had no friends in New York and was unfamiliar with the city.

Inspector Byrnes has been asked to aid in the search for the missing girl.

UNCLE BEN" BAKER BURIED.

Beautiful and Impressive Ceremonies at Church and Grave.

POLITICAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

The funeral of Benjamin A. Baker, the actor, manager and playwright, and for years the assistant secretary of the Actors' Fund, who died Saturday from a paralytic stroke, took place this morning from the "Little Church Around the Corner," on Twenty-ninth street, near Fifth avenue.

The body, in a handsome black oak coffin, lay in state in the reception-room of his medical residence, 177 West Twelfth street, until 10 o'clock.

The features were life-like, and a peaceful smile seemed to encircle the mouth.

Floral offerings filled the room and almost covered the casket.

A special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Actors' Fund was held at 10 o'clock at the club rooms and action taken to commemorate Mr. Baker's death.

The Board then went to the residence to act as pall-bearers and accompanied the body to the church, where the Rev. Mr. Huntington conducted the funeral service.

The body was interred in a vault which was decorated with flowers. Noticeable among them were a large star of white roses on a pedestal, a small cross and a wreath of flowers of the Actors' Fund; and a basket of flowers.

The services were held at 10 a.m. in the church of the Ascension, 177 West Twelfth street.

Mr. Baker was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, of New Haven, Conn., and a graduate of Yale University.
